

'Skins Win!

Sunday, 15 November 2009

The Redskins scored 27 points today, which was 10 more points than they've scored in any game this season. And low and behold, they won. I'm shocked and awed. And PUMPED!!!

There's lots to talk about in this one: The fake field goal that everyone knew was coming, the reemergence of the running game, Levi Jones, Todd Yoder, the Defensive Line, Carlos Rogers finally getting benched after biting on the same freaking play for yet another touchdown, Hall with another pick, Hall and Landry and the lateral that nearly made me throw a beer at the television, the One Man Gang's huge hit, the One Man Gang's forced fumble, the facemask that nearly took Santana Moss's head off...

I'll point out here that Aaron's Precarious Picks of the Second Half have started off 1-0.

So who gets your Game Balls and Kick In The Balls Awards?

Isn't it nice to be able to pick from a plethora of candidates for the Game Ball Awards this week?

Quote of the Game from Dan Dierdorf (regarding newbie Quinton Ganther's first series on the field, which included a terrific blitz pickup and a catch for a first down): "He deserved a blow on the sideline."

Dude. Seriously.

You said he's right over there? And he'd give me my teeth back when I'm done? Great!
